

How to get a federal proof of vaccination

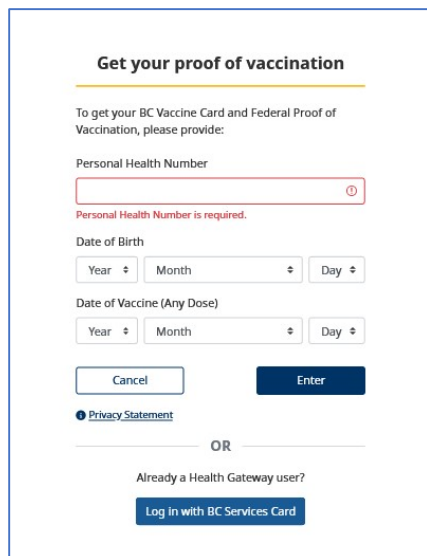

There are different avenues one can use to get a federal certificate of vaccination. Using the Internet browser is simple and consistent across different platforms (i.e. computer, phone, tablet...), while other options can behave differently depending on the tool that is used.

This 'guide' uses the Internet browser.

On your browser (e.g. Firefox, Chrome, Safari...), go to:

<https://www.healthgateway.gov.bc.ca/vaccinecard>

This is the BC website that will get you a federal vaccine card

You will get a BC proof of vaccination.

Now select "Save as" to download the federal proof of vaccination.

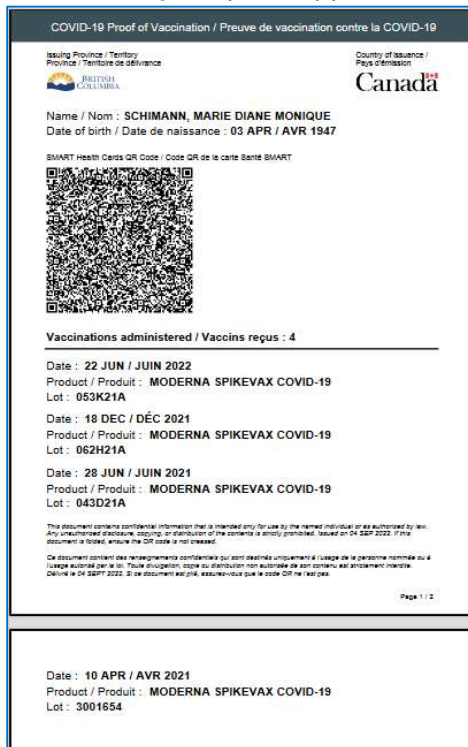

You will get the option to take an image of the BC vaccine card or a PDF of the federal proof.

Select PDF (Federal proof).

You will get a warning, select Continue.

A federal proof of vaccination will be displayed. (* See below if the proof of vaccination is not displayed)

Save and/or print your copy.

You can now email your Proof of Vaccination.

* If the proof of vaccination is not displayed, you likely need to download and open the file before it is displayed: Select Download followed by Open file.

Ways to send the file

1. Send a screenshot
 2. Locate the file on your phone or computer, and send it with your preferred emailing application.
- Note: on a Samsung phone, the file will be stored under: My Files/Downloads.
